CRR cost adjustment (for deposits placed at 1 Year & above)

1. Applicable Rate of Profit:

The Applicable Rate shall be nearest completed tenure Rack Rate at the date of accepting the said deposit or at the date of premature encashment, whichever is lower. Saving rack rate will be used for premature encashment with completed tenor of less than 30 days.

This applicable rate will be used to calculate the profit from the date of booking of the deposit till the date preceding the date of such premature encashment.

2. Premature Encashment Cost/Charge/

For deposit having Remaining Tenor equal to or less than one year.

- = (MAX [{KIBOR* minus the rate agreed with the customer at the time of booking of the deposit), Zero] X Remaining Number of days to Maturity/ 365) x Principle
- * KIBOR will be the next/matching to the remaining number of days of the deposit on the date of early encashment. KIBOR rate will be as published on the latest available Reuters KIBOR page on the date of early encashment

For deposit having Remaining Tenor of more

- = (MAX [{(PKRV plus 2%) minus the rate agreed with the customer at the time of booking of the deposit), Zero] X Remaining Number of days to Maturity/365) x Principle Amount
-  PKRV rate will be the nearest quoted tenure most closely matching the Remaining tenure of the deposit on the date of such early encashment. PKRV rate will be as published on the latest available Reuters PKRV page on the date of early

3. CRR Cost Adjustment

CRR cost will be calculated on the basis of Cash Reserve Requirement as set by the State Bank of Pakistan at the time of pre mature encashment. This is only applicable for term deposits which are booked for a year or above but are premature before

The premature encashment cost/charge will be recovered from the accrued profit and or principle amount. Principal deduction may be done in case of term deposit having profit pay out frequency other than at maturity.

(Business Head or person with authority delegated can lower or waive the above mentioned penalty in view of relationship, other business & customer service considerations)

In case of premature encashment of FCY Term deposits, the Expected rate of return corresponding to the last completed tenure will be applied on the number of days the deposit amount has remained with the bank. No profit will be paid in case of encashment before the completion of one month.
